

Kerrie Edmonds

Kerrie is a Jobplex Partner in our London office, leading retained emerging leader searches across the UK and Europe. With nearly 5 years of executive search experience, she has successfully completed searches for Presidents, VPs, Directors, Senior Managers and individual contributors in medium and large-sized, public and private Industrial, Technology, Life Sciences and Consumer corporations.

A native of Pennsylvania, Kerrie has been based in the UK for a number of years and initially joined DHR as a Senior Associate with experience in executing searches across the Industrial and Advanced Technology sectors. Since she joined DHR, she has been part of multiple European and Global initiatives across emerging leader search and executive search.

Prior to joining Jobplex and DHR, Kerrie served as a Consultant at the boutique executive search firm, Excelion Partners. She successfully built and executed business development campaigns, managed executive search assignments and focused on client engagement.

Prior to joining executive search, Kerrie taught English and established intensive English programs around Bangkok. She also worked as a Business Development Executive at an IT consulting firm in New York City, working directly for the CEO and managing client principals' books of business.

Kerrie earned a bachelor's degree in Finance, minoring in Economics from James Madison University where she played field hockey on a full scholarship and was head of the education committee for a professional business fraternity. Kerrie received her MBA in International Business Practice from St. Mary's University, Twickenham in the United Kingdom.
